Will cash cover payroll next month?

Period: August 2026. A 13-week cash forecast from 31 August: cash at bank, plus what customers owe on their usual payment dates and new work at its recent rate, less pay runs, supplier bills, the BAS and finance on their due dates. Every day opens its workings.

How final is this data?

August 2026 Locked August 2026 is locked (closed 2 Sep 2026). These numbers won't change.

In short: Yes: $56,248 forecast in the bank after the 3 September pay run, the tightest in September, and at least one pay run in reserve for all 13 weeks.

Cash at bank, 31 Aug	Paid to employees in September	After the tightest pay run, 3 Sep	Lowest point, next 13 weeks
$92,859	$73,222	$56,248	$56,248
end of the day	2 fortnightly pay runs, net pay + super	buffer: one pay run, $36,611	3 September

What it shows

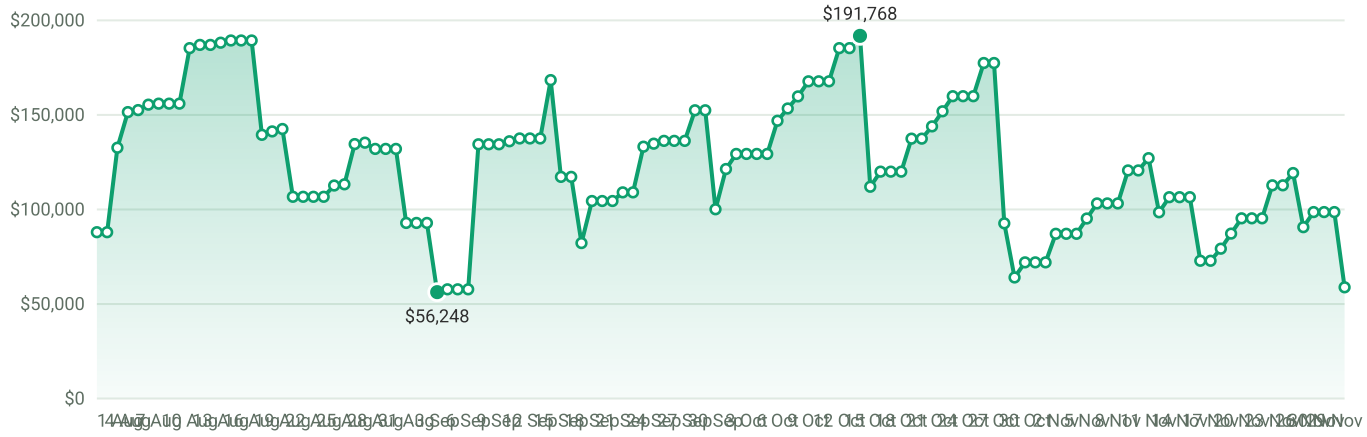

Cash at bank was $92,859 at 31 August. September has 2 pay runs ($73,222). The tightest is 3 September: $56,248 left after paying wages, $19,637 more than a pay run in reserve. The lowest point in the 13 weeks is $56,248 on 3 September.

What you'd do about it

15 invoices ($24,676) are already past the customer's usual payment date; the forecast assumes they arrive within a week. Without them, the lowest point would be $34,181. The July to September BAS ($86,220, estimated) is due 28 October: GST $33,132, PAYG withheld $47,754 and the PAYG instalment $5,334.

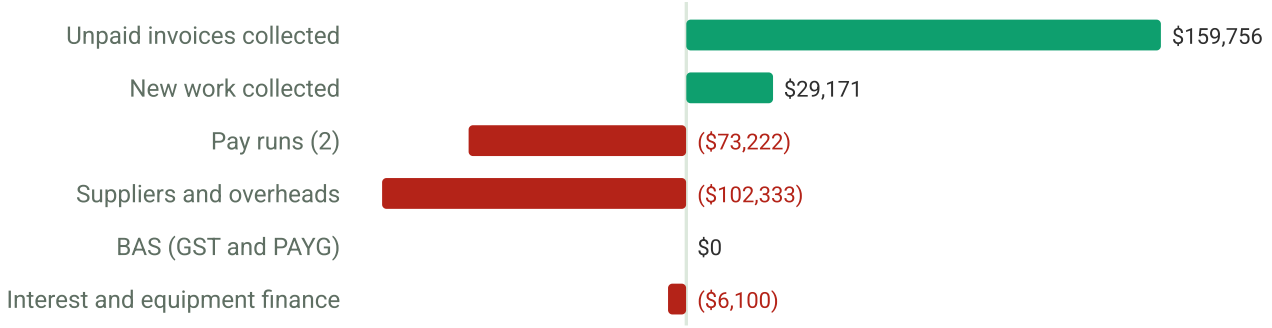

Cash at bank, every day: actual to 31 Aug, then forecast to 30 Nov

All · Cash at bank $

Lighter line = forecast. Customers are expected on their usual payment dates; new work at the last three months' rate; pay runs, supplier runs, interest, equipment finance and the BAS on their due dates. Receipts and bills include GST. Money only moves on banking days (not weekends or Queensland public holidays). Every month, by line, is in the spreadsheet download.
